The 71m explorer conversion forged by an owner's passion

Enrico Gobbi designs 44m explorer for Rossinavi

► Enrico Gobbi of Italian studio Team For Design has revealed his 44m explorer yacht design exclusively to Boat International.

Poseidon was developed on-spec with builder Rossinavi because both designer and yard were keen to add an explorer to their portfolios. The aluminium semi-displacement yacht fulfils its role aesthetically and practically, with styling inspired by icebreakers and a 10,000nm range at 14 knots. 'We gave the lines of the hull to the engineers and proposed a compromise between the fashionable vertical bow and the sleek bow rake,' says Gobbi. 'We did one in the middle, recalling sailing yachts.'

Other distinctive styling details include longer, narrower versions of the gill-like windows seen on the Gobbi-designed 48m motor yacht Vellmari, launched by Rossinavi in 2013. Four-deck Poseidon also has a massive main aft deck and a stern that opens into a beach club. Glass panels in the aft deck pool allow sunlight to filter through and project a ripple effect onto the beach club.

Poseidon sleeps eight guests and seven crew. The engineering of the 44m is already developed, along with many other technical details, down to the lighting design. Gobbi is working on a 53m version of Poseidon.
