

Enrico Gobbi's Team for Design studio is currently honing the design of a new megayacht for Rossinavi. The owner of this tri-deck with clean, modern lines asked for an ocean-going vessel he could use all year round anywhere from the Caribbean to the Mediterranean. The elegant result is an extremely pared-back, minimalist expedition yacht with some beautiful styling details. Great swathes of glass characterise the profile bringing those aboard into constant touch with the exterior through scenic views as well as drawing the outside world inside. This contact with nature is very much a part of the concept underlying the design which features plenty of alfresco spaces for relaxing, dining and sunning. Even the aft gym area has sea views! The onboard lighting was designed for atmosphere and also to make the yacht instantly recognisable at night. The full-displacement hull by Arrabito Naval Architects will build in aluminium to deliver a much improved cruising speed to fuel consumption ratio.
